

Hanae Kiyooka

Homeschool Facilitator

Hi, my name is Hanae Kiyooka. I had the privilege and delight of experiencing homeschooling with my two daughters for fourteen years. We followed the traditional, parent-directed path throughout and now, my daughters are studying musical theatre and fine arts at university.

As my children explored and began to determine for themselves their interests and passions, I too discovered or re-discovered my love for many things including the arts, gardening, backpacking, community organizing, environmental protection, green building construction and social justice. I have spent many hours volunteering my time in many capacities related to these interests.

I am also deeply interested in emotional and mental well-being and fell in love with a process of self-inquiry called The Work of Byron Katie. I am a certified facilitator of this meditative tool and offer sessions to interested individuals/groups.

Prior to children and homeschooling, I taught high school French immersion and French as a second language for several years.

Welcome to the adventure of homeschooling/life learning. I look forward to supporting you in your journey of learning together.
