Call to Order
Opening Verse

Any Waldorf parent cares about their child.
Any Waldorf teacher cares about their children in the class.
Each parent and each teacher needs to care about the whole school.
The more the school cares about other Waldorf schools in the region,
the country, the world,
the more each member of the school community can regard themselves as a member of the global Waldorf community,
the healthier one's particular school will become,
the healthier Waldorf education will become,
the healthier education will become,
the healthier society will become. (John Wulsin)
